

The Merge Worship:
Questions and Thoughts for God shared during the worship

Where and how will “Emerge” go?

Why do people who have the same love for God show so much anger to each other?

What should “emerge” be?

How can Christ’s body be as welcoming as Christ is?

I’m thankful for laughter.

How do you know when it’s time to take the next step to a different life?

Help me to be understanding.

How do I listen?

How do I focus and quiet my soul?

How do I reignite the flame of faith?

I’m humbled by him.

I’m listening.

Why can’t we all be secure enough to get along?

What will make a difference?

What can this community look like?

Can we love each other enough?

I am wondering what God has in store for me.

Where do we go from here?

I don’t think it’s a matter of whether or not we can, it is... how do we do it?

Remind me that you dwell in everyone even those filled with hate.

Can’t we talk about how we feel and what we believe and not defend ourselves?

Why can’t I let others be right and take the lead?

Why must I insist I’m sure when I’m not?

Why can’t others admit their doubts?

How do we create ways where people can let their souls sing?

Is it possible I have experienced your presence through relationships more strongly than I have when I read the Bible?

I can see the person I long to be. I long for worship to be at the core of everything. Life, me, life, and me gets in the way. How do I get there and have a friend for the journey?

I'm thankful to have been here among people trying new things.

Thanks for the time of silence and awakening that comes with listening.

There is no secular space (only secular uses). It's all sacred.

Church is for sinners!

Why so many options?

Help me to make good friends and find myself. Help others see the goodness in my heart.

Where am I going? How do I get there?

Why must we seek you?

How long... how much longer?

Meet me where I am. Take me where I need to go.

Why aren't your answers to prayer more apparent?

If we think we're perfect, why do we need God?

Show me what you want me to do. Guide me in your right path. Help me make it always about you.

I know you have been there on my faith journey. But where have I been? Why am I so lost?

Thank you for purpose! Keep helping.

I could never thank you enough for the numerous blessings and gifts you constantly shower upon me. However, I will try every day of my life to show my thanks by loving as you love.

The leaders - those who lead in God's name – have an awesome responsibility.

Why am I here? Where am I headed? Can you be enough?

What?

Does God care when, how, or if we worship?

How can I be better and more meaningful in what I'm currently doing, not doing more, but doing it better?

Must there be a complete destruction of what once brought people to you before people will come to you again?

How can I love the people who flip me off on the freeway?

How do I get real again and get the church residue off of me so that I'm not so culturally conditioned?

God, how can everything be so good, yet I feel so blah? The valleys are hard.

Why isn't this easy?

How do I get from here to there?

What can I do to help?

I praise God for these people seeking and wondering. But I wonder... why God? Why do I not feel your presence in these times of worship? What's missing? Is it me?

Church is a goal, not a building.

How can we peel off all the layers of sediment that cover up your presence in daily life?

How can we rekindle our imagination to see you in all things?

Why does the chicken cross the road?

What will make me happy in a job? Or at least not miserable...

What should I do with my life? What do you want me to do?

Thank you for the struggle.

Will you find ways to open doors for the kids?

Will you save a space for those who may not believe in you? I want them to be there...
